SPRING 1993 VOLUME 1 NO. 1

REUNION ANNOUNCEMENT

We hope you will join with the Smith Family for our Nauvoo Sesquicentennial Celebration August 6 - 8, 1993!

This is a significant year in historic Nauvoo, being the summer prior to the Sesquicentennial Anniversary of the martyrdom of the Prophet Joseph and his brother Hyrum. The reunion committee is planning an exciting agenda for this special occasion.

The reunion will begin officially Friday evening. The RLDS Historic Guides will host registration and a reception at the newly restored Mansion House (Joseph and Emma's Nauvoo home) from 6:00 - 9:00 p.m. Light refreshments will be served.

Saturday, Aug. 7th, will begin at Carthage Jail; registration at 9:30 a.m. The first formal session will commence at 10:00 a.m.

We shall then be on our own for lunch and meet again in Nauvoo at the LDS Visitors Center at 2:00 p.m. That evening there will be a reunion banquet, entertainment, and the renowned "City of Joseph" Pageant. Sunday's activities will begin at 10:30 a.m. and will conclude in the afternoon.

Buddy Youngreen is taking those family members who can make the arrangements to travel with him to many church history sites, including the reunion at Nauvoo, from July 26 to August 12. Those interested should read his announcement that is enclosed and respond to him.

Participants will make their own hotel reservations for which the attached list will be helpful. It is suggested that reservations be made by July 1. Please let it be known that you are with the Smith Family reunion.

TRUSTEES MESSAGE

We are pleased to send you the first newsletter of the Joseph Smith, Sr., and Lucy Mack Smith Family Foundation. The non-profit foundation has now been established in accordance with our May 7, 1992 letter to you. We express thanks to the many volunteers who have offered help. We have appointed chairmen for committees to work on family history and genealogical research, newsletter publication, finding family members, maintaining mailing lists, conducting family reunions and participating in other family projects. The chairmen are in the process of asking family members to serve on these committees. We have established full financial accountability and controls.

The Nauvoo Family Cemetery has been successfully completed and was dedicated August 4, 1992. Interest in the cemetery has been high. It is estimated that nearly 100,000 visited the cemetery last year. It has been well maintained by the family foundation. An endowment fund of approximately $50,000 has been established. Cemetery fund raising is now complete. All bills have been paid, and no debts or obligations exist. Interest on this fund will provide enough income to perpetually maintain the cemetery in a beautiful condition. We thank you all for your support. Special thanks to Ted and Florence Jacobsen for their marvelous help in raising funds for the cemetery project.

As you will notice from our committee structure, there will be many benefits from our new foundation for family members. There is a wealth of historical and genealogical data to be gathered and shared. We plan to conduct more historical and genealogical research and make it available to the family. We also plan to publish a newsletter at least semi-annually. Many family members need to be found and it will be exciting to learn about them. Family reunions will be held regularly and other family projects may be initiated. However, to accomplish these goals, some continuing financial support will be needed. We are proposing annual dues of $8.00 per family. The dues will cover costs of the newsletter and other family committee expenses. These monies will be used to finance projects the family would like to undertake. Contributions are tax deductible and checks should be made payable to the Joseph Smith, Sr. and Lucy Mack Smith Family Foundation and sent to our treasurer: D. Spencer Nilson, 180 East 2100 South, Salt Lake City, UT 84115. An envelope is enclosed for your convenience. Please remit your $8.00 family dues by July 1st to receive the next family newsletter.

We thank you again for your support and encourage all family members to participate to some degree in the family organization. We urge any of you who can serve in committee assignments to send your name and committee preference to any one of us. We look forward to working with you and getting to know you better.

CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

Hyrum M. Smith writes:

After my retirement, and just now completing a two-year mission in Nauvoo, as Director of the LDS Visitors Center complex, I am delighted to be an active member of the Family once again.

I have been asked to serve as Family Function Committee Chairman of the new extended organization—"the Joseph Smith, Sr. and Lucy Mack Smith Family Foundation." I would love to hear from any of you who would be interested in serving as family representatives. Chairmen of the various committees would also appreciate your help. It will be helpful if each of you will reach out to the descendants of your line, and bring them back into association with those of our royal family.

At the present time we have some contact with descendants of Joseph, Hyrum, Katherine, and Samuel. We would like to have contact with descendants of Lucy, Don Carlos, and William.

If any of you can help us by furnishing information about any descendants we may not know, please contact me. We can all look forward to a grand reunion together in Nauvoo in August, 1993.

With warm regards,

A BOYHOOD OF HAPPY COUSINS

Joseph Smith III was the oldest surviving son of Joseph and Emma Smith and John Smith was the oldest son of Hyrum and Jerusha Smith. These two were only six weeks apart in age, and though they were cousins, they were as close as brothers when their families lived next to one another in Nauvoo in 1840 to 1844. These were carefree, happy times for these boys who were not yet in their teens.

A glimpse of those days is provided for us in a reminiscence written to John by Joseph in 1909. They were then 63 years old.

"I am reminded of the far off past when you and I used to ride through the streets of Nauvoo, you on the white horse and I on the black, the two most noted boys in the city. Some of those days come back like a flood to my memory, and I wonder how much of the past you may recall. Not many are left, Cousin John, of the band that we knew then. The Snyder boys (Edgerton and John), the Haws boys (William and Louellen), Jared Carter's boys, the Turney children, Sydney Rigdon's children (Sydney and Wycliffe), the last named being at Salt Lake City now as I understand, the Laws (Richard and William), Edward Partridge, the Billings boys, the Decker boys, the Hancocks, Joseph Clapp, James and Henry Lawrence, the Lyties, the Phelps (James and Henry), Alreads and others, most of which have gone on before, leaving but a few of the little circle we knew. All admonish us that the places we occupy will soon be vacated for others now younger and stronger, who will take up with vigor the things we leave undone."

This letter gives us a sense of the life lived by these lively boys on the banks of the Mississippi River.

It is a special beacon that calls to family members today to know that at the age of 63 the love and concern of these two cousins for each other after years of long and painful separation caused by differences of understanding and thousands of miles of country, is made evident in this writing of Joseph Smith III as he pleads for John to send him information about family members who are far distant even as he writes of the Salisburys, Aunt Katherine's family who live in Illinois.

From a letter sent in by Eldred G. Smith dated January 13, 1993.

KATHERINE, THE LAST SMITH SISTER

Katherine Smith Salisbury (1812-1900) lived longer than any other children of Joseph Smith, Sr., and Lucy Mack Smith and was the last member of the family to pass away. There may be more contemporarily written about Katherine and her family than any of the others except Joseph, Jr. Katherine was baptized by David Whitmer in 1830 and was married to Wilkens J. Salisbury by Sidney Rigdon in Kirtland in 1831. She and her family literally grew with the church. No other family member saw the Latter-day Saint movement organized, disorganized, reorganized, dislocated, relocated, so many times as did she. She watched her family depart this life one by one. No wonder the patriarchal blessing given by her father begins, "Katherine has been a sorrowful child, trouble has she seen...(but) she shall be comforted when her days of sorrow are ended...."

Eight children were born to her marriage with Wilkins Salisbury, with five reaching maturity. One of the five however was murdered for being a Latter-day Saint while the other three, of the eight, died at three months, two years, and four years, respectively, due in large measure to the constant persecution and forced relocations of the church and family. The family lost all their possessions three times: in Ohio, in Missouri, and in Illinois. When trying to leave Nauvoo, what little they had was lost on the barge ferry that sank, and they were forced to return to Nauvoo with only the clothes on their backs.

Consequently, while the other family members were distancing themselves somewhat from Nauvoo for safety, Katherine and her family were forced to remain in the deserted city, alone! With the enemy on all sides, she and her family were literally made prisoners in the boarded up William Marks house for several days under the threat of being shot if they dared venture outside. Two of her children, one boy and one girl, later died as an indirect result of this experience.

Persecution and abuse were the lot of the children as they attended school and other functions in Hancock County simply because of their religion. It was bad enough to be poor, but to be different too, was almost intolerable. As a result, many of the family became quite silent about the church and their religion. It just seemed better that way.

There are many descendants of Katherine Smith Salisbury. Several of her children each had eight children. Some of her descendants include prominent citizens of several counties in west central Illinois, southeastern Iowa, central Missouri and Kansas among other locations throughout the nation. Descendants include scientists, college presidents, authors, writers, teachers, ministers, physicians, newspaper editors, engineers and politicians.

It was Katherine who heard and remembered the words of the last sermon of her brother, Joseph Smith. It was Katherine who lived in the twentieth century. It was Katherine who saw the beginning and rise of the church. It was Katherine's funeral that was conducted on the site of the only chapel built by the Church in the Nauvoo era. She was buried at Webster where six hundred Latter Day Saints had previously lived some sixty years before in what was the largest Church community settlement outside of Nauvoo. It was Katherine's children who carried Emma to her grave beside her beloved Joseph, in 1879.

Yet, with this rich heritage in the Latter Day Saint community, about half the family have become members of other churches. Some have become ministers.

In the 1890s, Salisbury family reunions that began as annual dinners became larger events, and people from far and near came to break bread with Katherine, the last living member of the founding family of the Latter Day Saint Church.

Katherine's life can be divided into four periods of time. In the first, some eighteen years, she was a girl growing up in the "Smith family of prophets," where she saw the Book of Mormon and the church come into being. The second period, lasting about twenty years, saw her married, raising a family, then coming to an abrupt ending with the premature death of her husband, Wilkens, from typhoid fever. The third period, also about twenty years, was one of heartache and poverty brought on in large measure because of her and her family's devotion to their faith and family. Freedom from worry and want, with an ever enlarging circle of friends, came to her in the fourth period. In the 1890s, Salisbury family reunions that began as annual dinners soon turned into larger events as everyone from near and far wanted to come and break bread with Katherine, the last living link in the founding family of the Latter Day Saint movement.

There would be numerous reviews in surrounding newspapers with prominent persons from all walks of life wanting to share in the event. Katherine was blessed with the ability to remember many of her prophet brother's messages almost, it seemed, word for word. She could express herself to her many visitors almost to the very end of her life. Katherine never lost interest in the church her family was instrumental in founding or the Book of Mormon that was brought forth as new scripture. She went to her final rest February 2, 1900, and her funeral was held February 4th with burial beside her husband and other family members in the Webster (Ramus) Illinois cemetery.

For further information on Katherine, see "Katherine Smith Salisbury," and "The Salisbury Family," both by Warren L. Van Dine.

We are indebted to Kenny E. Duke, of Keosauqua, Iowa, a long time participant in the Smith family, and a third great-grandson of Katherine, for the paper from which this article was edited.

SMITH CEMETERY COMPLETED

Family trustees dedicated the Smith family cemetery in Nauvoo on August 4, 1991, and established an endowment fund for its perpetual care.

The project began in 1990 when a formal tax exempt, non-profit foundation was established. A contract was negotiated with the Restoration Trail Foundation and fund-raising formally began. Added inspiration came from a letter written by Emma to her son, Joseph Smith III, on Dec. 2, 1867 in which she expressed her concern for the condition of the family cemetery, located next to the old log homestead where Joseph Jr. and Emma lived with their small family from 1839 to 1842.

The beautiful garden cemetery was dedicated August 4, 1991 by Wallace B. Smith. More than 1,200 were in attendance. Speakers included trustees Daniel M. Larsen, Eldred G. Smith, M. Russell Ballard, and Wallace B. Smith. Prayers were offered by Rosalee Smith Elser and Hyrum Mack Smith. A wreath was placed on the graves by Lois Smith Larsen and Donna Lee Frogley, descendants of Joseph and Hyrum.

The following has been accomplished:

- A beautiful picket fenced cemetery has been completed on the banks of the Mississippi River for the graves of Joseph, Emma, Hyrum, their parents, Joseph Smith, Sr. and Lucy Mack Smith, and 19 others, including Samuel and Don Carlos, has been completed.
- Flower beds, trees and lawn have been planted, and benches placed for visitors.

- A new headstone for Joseph, Emma, and Hyrum has been put in place.
- A separate entrance has been created from Water Street with a lighted brick walkway to a new patio and the grave area.
- Appropriate signs have been placed carrying tributes and listing the names of all buried there.
- An endowment fund has been established for maintenance of the cemetery.

On Oct. 31, 1992 officers encased a time capsule in the monument containing the names of known descendants and of those who contributed to the new cemetery.
