Topsfield, MA
May 13, 14 & 15, 2022

The Dedication and Community Celebration Dinner was held at the Topsfield Fairgrounds, 207 Boston Street. The dinner was in the Coolidge Hall located on the fairgrounds. This was a catered event with a generous benefactor paying $100 per plate for the evening. Almost 200 people were in attendance.

Coolidge Hall

Rick Cochran described the evening: “Professional musicians performed, some thank you’s to the community, a presentation of family history being presented by three Topsfield community members, a video presentation was shared, a very special solo by a professional Steinway Master Artist and vocalist (Isaac James) who they flew in from Florida. He performed a song entitled “I Went Home.” This song told the story of Joseph Smith going home and telling his mother what he experienced in the grove of trees.”

Rick continued, “This song was a perfect selection recognizing the goodness of the Smith family who established a foundation of faith for Joseph Smith, Jr. Then concluding speaker was President Ballard.”

The meeting was under the direction of the Ensign Peak Foundation with help from Rick Cochran and the Topsfield Smith Memorial Dedication Committee.

Before the dinner began, we had a chance to have various family members sign the thank you we will be giving to the Congregational Church on Sunday.

Kim Wilson, chairman of the board of Ensign Peak Foundation, speaks at a dinner program highlighting the efforts to erect a new monument to the ancestors of Joseph Smith Jr. in Topsfield, Massachusetts, on Friday, May 13, 2022. Intellectual Reserve. All Rights Reserved.

Deseret News: “Kim Wilson, chairman of the board of Ensign Peak Foundation, which funded the project, spoke of Joseph Smith’s relatives, his own Mayflower relatives and other “courageous people” who sought religious freedom and made unthinkable sacrifices to settle the United States.”

Kim continued, “Fast forward 400 years. We look back upon their sacrifices, their nobility, their good intentions, their pivotal lives, and we do it from the prospect of the power of very favored and blessed circumstances. All of us have people like that.”

“A person does not need to be a descendant of the Pilgrims or the Smith family to celebrate their ancestry,” he said. “We are all descended from noble, noble people who lived difficult lives, made difficult choices and paid a heavy price. And we stand on their shoulders,” he said. “All what we experience today is because of those sacrifices.”

Smith Family Gift

Frances Orton on behalf of the Joseph Smith Sr. and Lucy Mack Smith Family Association, honored President M. Russell Ballard

Frances thanked all those who made this wonderful event happen. She also said, "I also want to thank the people of Topsfield for inviting us to your wonderful community so that we could participate and share in this event. It has felt like coming home."

Our Family Association is offering annual scholarships to students who are planning on pursuing education. Applicants do not need to be Smith Family descendants to enter. Please spread the word about this opportunity. There is still one month to enter for this year so let those around you know about it. More info. go to Josephsmithsr.org/scholarship."

Frances' message:

I serve as the Chair of the Joseph Smith Sr. and Lucy Mack Smith Family Association. I am so honored to serve with a great group of people. Many of our committee traveled here and I would like them to stand.

Our committee has been blessed over the years to have the influence of a man who loves his family ties as much as we do. President M. Russell Ballard understands that knowing where you come from makes a difference. He once said, "We are all bound together— Our journey is different, but the trail we must follow is the same. It is the trail of faith, and if we keep our feet firmly planted on that trail, we will be just as successful in facing our challenges and trials in conquering the wilderness of worldly things as our ... ancestors were in facing theirs."

"Real faith, our anchor in the storm, born of the Spirit, affects our actions and our attitudes. When we truly believe, we ask not "What do I have to do?" but rather "What more can I do?" When we truly believe, and when that belief is confirmed upon our souls by the Holy Spirit, faith becomes a causative force in our lives, driving every thought, word, and deed heavenward. That's what it means to walk with "faith in every footstep." It was so for our... ancestors, and it must be so for us today." - Elder M. Russell Ballard, When Thou Art Converted

This year's Smith family reunion in Nauvoo will recognize 50 years of reunion efforts and events. Lilac blossoms have long been recognized to hold special meaning to many family members. Lucy Mack Smith, Emma Hale Smith, Jerusha Barden Smith, and Mary Fielding Smith, among others, planted and cared for lilacs. For generations, Smith family descendants have nurtured lilac bushes grown from cuttings from Kirtland, Ohio, the Smith Family Cemetery in Nauvoo, Illinois, and in Utah. Blossoms that were propagated from those same plants have been preserved and incorporated into jewelry items made by our committee members, Debbie Nelson and her daughter Courtney. Tonight, we are pleased to present you (President Ballard) with one of those items as a memento of gratitude from the family.

From the Deseret News, President Ballard - “My mother is Geraldine Smith. She is the oldest daughter of Hyrum Mack Smith, who is the oldest son of Joseph F. Smith, who was the youngest son of Hyrum Smith,” he explained.

Claiming his own family connection, President Ballard said, is always a “glorious privilege.”

“It is very special to be here and to be able to contemplate and appreciate the impact of my forebears — Hyrum and Joseph Smith,” he said.

Church News: Accompanying President Ballard to Massachusetts were Elder LeGrand R. Curtis Jr., a General Authority Seventy and Church historian and recorder, and Brother Craig B. Ballard, President Ballard's son and a member of the Young Men general advisory council. In addition to visiting the cemetery and participating in the dedication, the group also visited the Smith homestead and historic Gould Barn in the community.

"We are here today because it is important to never lose sight of those who have laid the groundwork and built the path that has led to the light and truth [of the gospel of Jesus Christ] that is available to those who are willing to seek it, find it, embrace it and join it," President Ballard said.

Anne Barret, President of the Topsfield Historical Society

Church News: Anne Barret, president of the Topsfield Historical Society, said the history of the Smith family is intertwined with the Topsfield community. The new marker — built by the Ensign Peak Foundation in collaboration with town officials — serves as a quiet reminder that the Smiths were once here, she said.

"One might be tempted to think that this small sleepy village wouldn't boast much in the way of history," she said. "But, in fact, Topsfield's story is really the quintessential story of so many New England towns and the people who brought their hopes, dreams and vision to this land," she said.

When the town was settled — a time when religion was central to everyday life — villages were required to hold church meetings; in 1650 a petition was submitted to the colonial government asking that a new village be established in Topsfield so inhabitants would not have to journey to far-off villages for Sunday meetings and other village activities, said Barret.

Once an agricultural community, Topsfield is still home to the United States' oldest continuous fair. Many residents who live in the rural, suburban community today work in nearby cities in professional and manufacturing jobs. "But what has remained constant is that this small village has remained a cherished place for over 350 years," Barret said.

Heidi Swinton gave a powerful talk

Church News: Heidi Swinton of the Ensign Peak Foundation said "all of us in Christianity are working to do what was described of Jesus Christ: He 'went about doing good ... for God was with Him' (Acts 10:38)."

Church News: The new monument — 9 feet, 6 inches high and weighing 13,868 pounds — sits near another Smith marker, placed in the cemetery in 1873 under the direction of President George A. Smith, a counselor to President Brigham Young and first cousin to Joseph Smith Jr. Some of the Smith family are buried in the cemetery, but the locations of their graves are unknown.

Elder LeGrand R. Curtis, Jr

Church News: Even though he never lived in New England, Elder Curtis said visiting the area is like going home. Like the Smiths, Elder Curtis' first ancestors came to the United States and landed in Massachusetts.

"Nothing of significance ever occurs without the efforts of many people," he said. "Many have contributed to these monument projects, giving their vision, their work and their resources."

The obelisk design of the marker “is reminiscent of the granite monument constructed by the Church in Sharon, Vermont, at Joseph Smith Jr.’s birthplace,” said Elder Curtis.

During his remarks, Elder Curtis mentioned other monuments in Topsfield, one at the Congregational Church where the Smiths worshipped and a second at 22 Boardman Lane, found near the Smith family homestead, which was built in 1690.”

Church News: Alex Tatum has lived at and owned the property that was once the Smith homestead with his wife and children for four and a half years. Visitors are allowed to the site because he recognizes that this is a time when people are searching — eager to make personal connections to their own history. He attended a dinner the evening before the dedication and left with the same personal resolve — a desire to connect to his own family tree.

Craig Ballard, Elder LeGrand R. Curtis, Jr., President Jacob Soucy, and President M. Russell Ballard speaking

Church News: President Ballard also dedicated the monument at the Smith homestead, on a rainy day in 2005: “This monument is erected in honor of the Smith family of Topsfield whose lives and character exemplified the cultural, political and religious values of the New England region and of a new and emerging nation,” reads the marker.

Topsfield’s 2020 census population was 6,569. Town Administrator Kevin Harutunian said it is special “to have so many people from around the country and beyond come to Topsfield to engage in the historical significance of this community.”

This community, he added, is the people.

“It’s an incredibly dynamic community, small community, friendly community — one that enjoys its historical significance, seeks historical significance and loves to share that with others.”

Introduction

The ancestral roots of Joseph Smith Jr., the founder and prophet of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, extend deep into the soil of New England, where, in the early years of the 18th century, his forefathers, including his great-grandfather, George A. M. Russell Ballard

I was honored to minister to members of the Church and friends in New England and to participate in the events surrounding the dedication of the Smith Family Memorial in Topsfield, Massachusetts, this weekend. I am the great-great-grandson of Hyrum Smith—the brother of the Prophet Joseph Smith—so this event was particularly special for me.

We have an important responsibility to ensure the legacy of faith of our pioneer forefathers is never lost. Throughout my life, I have drawn strength from examples of faithfulness shown by my ancestors. I feel a solemn obligation to ensure that we never forget the significance of their involvement in the Restoration of the Church of Jesus Christ in the latter days.

As we consider how the Lord prepared the world for the Restoration of His gospel, we should always remember that much of what He accomplishes is through the lives of ordinary men and women—like those in this family—who achieve extraordinary things through Jesus Christ.

In September 2020, a new monument was erected adjacent to the historic church in 1862. Funding was provided through the Ensign Peak Foundation.

The monument is located in the cemetery of the church. The monument is located in the cemetery of the church, and it is a monument to the Smith family.

UNION STREET, SALEM, MASSACHUSETTS

Union Street, Salem, MA. Photo (2009) by Kenneth Mays.

In the summer of 1836, Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, Sidney Rigdon, and Oliver Cowdery journeyed to Salem, Massachusetts, arriving in early August. While in Salem, the group rented a house on Union Street. It is believed that the group stayed in Salem about a month. They were to raise money and “preach the gospel door to door and in public meetings.” Salem was a city of about 15,000 residents at the time.

Union Street, Salem, MA. Photo (2009) by Kenneth Mays.

The exact address of the house they stayed in is uncertain, but the street is only about a block long so the location of the site is narrowed down considerably. On August 6, 1836, perhaps while he was in the Union Street house, the Prophet received a revelation which is now section 111 of the Doctrine and Covenants. Sidney Rigdon, Oliver Cowdery, and Hyrum Smith were at a museum, allowing Joseph to possibly be alone in the rented house. The heading to section 111 explains that this group of brethren was there because they had heard from a man named Jonathan Burgess “that a large amount of money would be available to them in Salem.” That resource was not obtained, but the Lord explained that “there are more treasures than one for you in this city.” (D&C 111:10.)

This insight was better understood, at least in part, in the subsequent conversions of many new members five years later as well as the discovery of valuable family history information in the area.

OWNERSHIP STATUS

Union Street is a public road in Salem, MA and open to all. However, all the homes and businesses are privately owned. Nothing is open for tours. It is not known where on this street the Joseph Smith stayed while in Salem. Consequently, there is no way to determine whether or not that structure is still extant. However, it is known that several of the structures on Union Street were standing in 1836 when the Prophet and his party stayed in Salem.

A Day of Fellowship

Sunday, May 15th, we left at 8:15 and walked to the Congregational Church. Our family was meeting with the church choir to practice singing at 9:00. Everyone had to wear a mask.

Before the choir began to practice, Linda Erickson, Frances Orton, and Michael Nebeker discuss items before the service

Church News: "Reflecting interfaith unity, the Congregational Church of Topsfield invited President Ballard's son, Craig, who is a member of the Young Men general board, to speak at their worship services on Sunday morning. He expressed gratitude on behalf of President Ballard "for the warm welcome that [the Smith] family [has] received and continue to receive in Topsfield. This is true Christianity." Fifty Smith descendants participated in the worship services and were invited to sing with the choir. It was the first-time descendants of the Smith family had attended the Congregational Church in more than 200 years."

During the service, Amy A. Bruch, Associate Minister for the Congregational Church used a quote in her message from Pastor John Robinson to the Pilgrims on their farewell journey.

"[Robinson] charged us before God and his blessed Angels, to follow him no further then he followed Christ.

And if God should reveal anything to us by any other instrument of his, to be as ready to receive it, as ever we were to receive any truth by his Ministry: For he was very confident the Lord had more truth and light yet to break forth out of his holy Word." (Words of John Robinson, Old South Leaflets. No. 142.)

Michael Nebeker made some remarks after thanking this community for leaving their lights on: "We have received nothing but kindness in this town. Rick and I have been collaborating as many others have been on this project for many years. The warm welcome that we have felt in this village is truly remarkable. I would like to read a scripture out of Corinthians. It is my favorite scripture.

1 Corinthians 2:9-10 "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

As a young man, reading this scripture growing up, I always thought that these were promises to come in the next life. I was not prepared for the feelings and impressions that I have felt this weekend.

Being in the midst of fellow saints, thank you for your devotion to Christ. Your devotion to faith. Your devotion to liberty and our righteous way of life in the United States of America.

Thank you for being here. You are always welcome to come out West. Our doors are open to you in our homes throughout Utah and elsewhere. I pray that God's spirit is with you always.

I say these things in the name of our Savior Jesus Christ, Amen."

Craig Ballard addressing the Sunday morning group

Craig Ballard, "Good morning. I am here on behalf of my father who is 93 years old and had another commitment at the same time this morning. He wants all of you to know how grateful he is for the warm welcome we have received and continue to receive here in Topsfield.

This is true Christianity. There is so much more that unites us than divides us. When we have these opportunities to work together, worship together, and enjoy things together we can see there is more that unites us.

This church has been the spiritual sanctuary for five generations of Smiths. This is where the believing blood of the Smith Family was developed and grown and nurtured. This is where they learned to love their Savior, Jesus Christ.

Joseph Smith Sr. was able to put that same love into the hearts of his children, including Joseph Smith Jr. Who was the founder and prophet of our church, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

There is so much we can look to in this wonderful part of this world, in you and the great people of Topsfield that we can be grateful for in nurturing and developing the believing blood.

I want to share one quote with you that I found inspiring. It is a quote by a Frenchman, Alexis de Tocqueville. He wrote:

"I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her commodious harbors and her ample rivers, and it was not there. I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her fertile fields and boundless forests, and it was not there. I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her rich mines and her vast world commerce, and it was not there. I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her public school system and her institutions of learning, and it was not there. I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her democratic Congress and her matchless Constitution, and it was not there. Not until I went into the churches of America and heard her pulpits flame with righteousness did I understand the secret of her genius and power. America is great because she is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, she will cease to be great."

That is a telling statement. I think we see a lot of this happening right now. You are good. We all want to do good and do what the Savior has asked us to do. Love each other, help each other, bless each other's lives, and try to be His disciples,

I want to leave my testimony; I know Jesus Christ lives. I know He is our Savior and redeemer. That He and only He has the path to eternal life and salvation. I am grateful for that testimony and leave it with you in the name of Jesus Christ, Amen."

Craig asked Daniel Adams to bring up the gift from the Smith Family.

Daniel Adams brought a framed painting and explained, “The Smith Family has an Association. I am Dan Adams and as part of Smith Family Association, we cannot adequately express the gratitude and thanks that we have. Our hearts have overflowed while we have been here. We had a Smith Family Member who is an artist paint a picture of Topsfield in the 1760’s. The homes that are surrounding the Topsfield Congregational Church.

Daniel read the words on the painting and then said, “We are presenting this to your congregation and community and on the back, it is signed with the members of the Smith Family Association and also Smith descendants. This is a small token of a debt of gratitude that we feel. Thank you.”

Larry Atkins - Pastoral Care

Larry Atkins began, I have been living across the street from your family for years. They are a quiet bunch. Before COVID, each summer, we would have a bus come through and it was always in the morning. They get you people up early. It is usually a Saturday. They go over and at that time look at the grave. Now they really have something to see. Whoever did that work needs to be commended. It is absolutely beautiful.

I spent time over there this morning, very early. The birds were singing such a gorgeous song. They were so happy to be alive and start a new day.

I am a member of this church. I have worked a long time with caretakers. I have always admired our caregivers. Unfortunately, I generally meet families under a lot of stress. It is a very emotional time. Some of those folks have been in hospice and for some things are coming to a close. The caregivers are experiencing fatigue. Some wonder why and ask God why he is doing this to them. There are not easy answers but basically, God is on your side. He is crying bigger tears than you are.

I was looking for a good definition of what a caregiver is. I heard a story of a veterinarian. As he went to work, he saw a homeless man with his dog. He could see his dog was sick. He asked what he could do. He brought medications to help the dog. That to me is a definition of a caregiver too.

I came across something the Smith Family might enjoy. One of your first counselors gave a talk years ago about care giving. He said there are three things important in care giving:

- Care for each other
- Teach each other and be taught
- Sit down

I have a fourth one – curiosity.

Sometimes your loved one might be suffering from dementia and that can be hard. Serving those people and letting them get away can be important.

Moses' mother placed him in a basket and put him in the river. He floated to safety. A princess became a care giver to Moses. That is probably the first time that caregiving we mentioned in the bible.

Jesus told his disciple to serve those around them.

Some people take advantage of others for their own benefit. At this church we have done a good job of trying to take care of each other. I believe care givers have so much hope for those they are caring for.

I think about all the people who have come through this church since 1850. What was this church like a hundred years ago? No indoor plumbing, no indoor lights, a potbelly stove to warm them, they probably sat with heated bricks under blankets to keep them warm. They came because they had hope for the future and a belief in God.

You are welcome if you know a lot or just a little – you are welcome. We are excited to have the smith's here. Five generations here. It wasn't easy to live here in the New England area.

We have a parish care team and they work quietly. We offer phone calls and prayers. Shirley Moses was a dynamo who got things done in the nicest and quietest way. There are a lot of Shirley Moses' out there. Taking meals over to people because we care. We have been involved with helping refugees settled. You folks from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints have a big mission. I was talking with some of your missionaries yesterday and they are serving a year. (Oh, it's two years.) Ok.

Let us not forget who we are and where we are going.

During prayers and celebration:

Prayer time. A Congregational Church member, Edward (aka Ed) Jelinek, stood and said, "I would like to offer thanks for the fellowship we share with the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on this historic occasion. Thank you for coming and worshipping with us. I want you to know that the town of Topsfield has and will be forever a refuge to you. Thank you to the Smith Family for helping us grow the town of Topsfield. That this church that was helped to be founded by Robert Smith in 1663 will always be a sanctuary to you. I say that on behalf of the church and on behalf of the town. Welcome. We will always leave the light of for you, Michael."

Rick Cochran stood and said, “Today is my birthday and I can’t think of a better place to be than with all of you.” He also shared his gratitude to the people of Topsfield and the Congregational Church.

The service program:

UNISON PRAYER:
O Holy One
Thank You for this Sunday. Lord, we come before you first and foremost with hearts of gratitude. You have seen us through another week, and we stand at the threshold of a fresh week, full of new beginnings. Lord, help us start this bright embarking with You. Stir in us a deep desire to come into further relationship with You. Remind us that it is not solely by going to Sunday service that we worship and come before You; rather, it is through the daily communion with You through relationship and prayer. Highlight to us how we may be obedient to Your call and heart. Embrace us with Your love, oh Lord, for we desperately desire to know You and to feel Your love around us. Give us a hunger for Your Word and truth, oh Lord. Help us begin our week this day in preparation through contemplation and connection with You. Amen.
THE LORD'S PRAYER
Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever. Amen.
